What shall we play today? And when are we eating breakfast? That first day in pre-school is awfully exciting. Good thing the Mouse knows all about it and can reassuringly describe what a pre-school looks like and what happens there.

Children are curious and want to know everything about their favorite subjects. They ask questions that grown-ups often can't answer.

Luckily, the Mouse can help by explaining even complex subject matter in a child-friendly and entertaining way.

For decades, the Mouse has been a star in German families. Not only pre-schoolers and elementary students love the informative and funny stories covered on the television series Sendung mit der Maus (The Program with the Mouse), many grown-ups are also enthusiastic fans. In almost 100 countries!

What goes into a school backpack? Do teachers live in the school building? Why do teeth start wiggling? Kids have a lot of questions when they start school – and the Mouse knows the answers to them!

An interesting factual book for kids 6 and up that helps to overcome insecurites and ease the entry into the exciting start of school life.

How come you can't tickle yourself? Why do some animals have mustaches? Is it possible to play badminton on the moon?

No matter if the question is about something in the world of animals, or technology, or just a mystery of everyday life, the Mouse knows the answer. So not only do we find out if soap bubbles can be square, we also learn why yawning is contagious.

Adults can learn a lot from this

Adults can learn a lot from this book, too! Who invented the letters of the alphabet? And how does a computer work, anyway? Kids want to know the details – and have been asking the Mouse for 50 years now.

This factual book gives answers to kids' most frequently asked questions from everyday life, nature and technology. Through witty illustrations and explanatory photographs, complex concepts are conveyed simply without leaving out the facts.

Bestselling single title with more than 30,000 copies sold!

A standard work that advocates for understanding and tolerance

- Important subjects: religion, diversity, tolerance
- Explains what differentiates religions as well as what unifies them
- Easy-to-understand and entertaining answers explain traditions, values and content of world religions

Why does God have so many names? Do all people celebrate Christmas? And how come there are sacred cows in India?

Children ask many questions about God and the world in which they live. A world in which their friends often have a different religion from theirs. Fortunately, the Mouse can answer kids' questions on Christianity and world religions.
